

MASSACHUSETTS WILDLIFE

Vol. LIV

No. 2

FEATURES

FIREFLIES: POETS, CHEMISTS & MOONCUSSERS 4

— Lee Stephanie Roscoe

The enchanting summer lights of childhood memories are highly evolved instruments of communication and predation — and they may be fading away ...

WHALE WATERS 16

— Jennifer Jacquet

Stellwagen Bank, a National Marine Sanctuary off the coast of Massachusetts, has the stars to support one of the largest whale watching fleets in the world ...

A DEAL WITH EELS 22

— John O’Leary

The world’s most famous catadromous fish faces the same problems negotiating its way over dams as the anadromous American shad and Atlantic salmon ...

WHERE TO GO ON WHEELS 27

— Marcy Marchello

Have wheels, will travel. The Commonwealth offers a host of world class wildlife viewing sites that are easily accessible to people of every ability ...

Director’s Editorial, 2

Correspondents, 36

Photo © by Bill Byrne

On the Cover: This male Photinus firefly, about $\frac{5}{8}$ of an inch in size, was “a macro challenge” according to wildlife photographer Bill Byrne. Bill caught it flashing one evening in Westboro, then photographed it the next morning as it briefly investigated a sprig of goldenrod before taking flight. He used a 105mm Nikon macro lens plus a 25 mm extension tube in combination with primary and secondary flash units to capture the image on Fuji Velvia 100 film.

TO SUBSCRIBE OR BUY A GIFT SUBSCRIPTION
PLEASE VISIT www.masswildlife.org
OR CALL 508-792-7270 ANY WEKDAY

Questions about your subscription?

Change of address?

Call toll free: 1 - 800 - 289 - 4778.

Photo by Maribeth Dawkins

